Following our conversation, based on the swept paths shown on drawing No. BARRY_01_DWG_01_20115 Rev C, it appears that HGV's will be required to use the weighbridge when entering and existing the site. As a result, those entering the site will be required to do so from the wrong side of the carriageway within the mouth of the access, which would lead to conflicts with those vehicles existing. Therefore, I would suggest that the weighbridge is relocated further into the site in order to reduce the risk of conflict at the access.

As we have previously discussed , we requested the the weighbridge is relocated further into the site in order to remove the impact on the access. Have you not requested this?

Hi Paul,

Further to the email below, we really need for you to decide if you are going to object to this or not as I really need to tie up some of the on going matters at this site. Do you know if you are going to object and if so on what highway safety grounds?

Hi Paul,

Ok, I think we are going to have to provide them with a detailed response of why the weighbridge would need to be moved into the site and what highway safety implications we are looking to mitigate by the amendment, especially as we previously agreed it in this position.

It is still not clear how the access will work for vehicles entering and exiting the site at the same time when using the weighbridge. Based on what has been submitted, I would suggest that the weighbridge is relocated further into the site in order to remove the impact on the access.

I think Highways concerns are most probably addressed in the Travel Plan we have submitted to discharge Condition 29 (see attached for convenience). This includes a statement that "Vehicle marshalling will be in place as required" – this is the banksman we have been referring to.

Can I suggest you pass this through to him?

Kind regards

Hi Douglas,

I did email earlier in the week but I just spoke to Faye as she is working today rather than Tuesday. She said that the comments for the application were on her list of jobs for the day.

I will pass the swept paths to the Highways Officer for comment. I did just discuss this issue with him directly and he is still concerned about the conflict from the different flows of traffic to the site. It might be an idea for you to indicate how conflicts between those vehicles bringing the feedstock in and those exiting over the weighbridge would be avoided via the banksman for his consideration, I will check the traffic plan to see what is detailed.

Dear Douglas,

PHW have provided the attached response. They have indicated that the information does not identify noise levels, atmospheric emissions and no assessment has been made on nearby receptors.

Can you provide the necessary information for PHW to comment on the potential impacts of the new buildings and come back to me.

Morgan, I have now received feedback in respect of the query from Public Health Wales relating to the pumphouse generator.

The contractors have provided the attached specification for the generator and have also commented as follows:

- The fire pump house contains duty standby diesel driven fire-water pumps.
- The pumps only operate during emergency or when tested (weekly during daytime).
- There is an electrically driven jockey pump to maintain fire main pressure.
- The diesel engines are fitted with silencers located within the fire pump house kiosk.
- The exhaust exits vertically from the side of the building.

Note that the attached specification has been extracted from a much larger document of 208 pages so if more detail is needed, this can be provided.

If Public Health Wales have any further questions then by all means send them over.

Kind regards

Douglas
