

Plate 12.1: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm looking towards the north east and showing the Grade II listed 'Original House' on the right-hand side and the late 19th century 'new' House in the background on the left.

Plate 12.2: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm looking north west from the track up to the railway bridge.

Plate 12.3: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm from the north end of the site, beside the existing housing estate at Upper Cosmeston Farm.

Plate 12.4: View looking west from the high ground between Lower Cosmeston Farm and the clifftop, with Cosmeston Country Park visible in the distance. The farm is not visible because of the natural topography and intervening hedgerows.

Plate 12.5: View looking south-west from the track between Lavernock Road and the clifftop. Once again, Lower Cosmeston Farm is screened from view by the natural topography and the intervening vegetation flanking the railway line.

Plate 12.6: View looking north north-east from Lavernock Road, opposite the junction with Fort Road, and here illustrating the experience of Lower Cosmeston Farm from the south.

Plate 12.7: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm looking east from the east side of Cosmeston Country Park between the medieval village and the car park.

Plate 12.8: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm looking east from the rising ground in the West Paddock above the west lake of Cosmeston Country Park.

Plate 12.9: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm looking south east from the north-western shore of the west lake at Cosmeston Country Park.

Plate 12.10: View looking north-east from the south-western end of the reconstructed medieval village at Cosmeston.

Plate 12.11: View from the western entrance showing the form and appearance of the farmyard at Lower Cosmeston Farm.

Plate 12.12: View from the south-eastern corner of the farmyard at Lower Cosmeston Farm and here showing the relationships between the four historic buildings and the central farmyard.

Plate 12.13: View looking north west from beyond the south-eastern corner of the farm group at Lower Cosmeston Farm, here showing the character of the structures and complex.

Plate 12.14: View looking south along the old course of the former Lavernock Road towards Lower Cosmeston Farm.

Plate 12.15: View of Lower Cosmeston Farm looking north across Lavernock Road along the line of the old road from the north end of the reconstructed medieval village.

Plate 12.16: View looking west south-west from the rising ground towards the former railway line and showing the relationship between Lower Cosmeston Farm and the adjoining agricultural landscape.

Plate 12.17: View looking north from the southern end of the site, here showing Lower Cosmeston Farm on the left-hand side and illustrating its relationship with the wider agricultural landscape.

Plate 12.18: View looking south west and showing the form and appearance of Lower Cosmeston Farm and its relationship with the adjoining agricultural landscape.

Plate 12.19: View looking north from the south-western corner of Lower Cosmeston Farm and (a) showing the internal focus of the historic buildings and (b) the deterioration and dilapidation of their fabric.

Plate 12.20: View looking south-east from the entrance to Lower Cosmeston Farm and showing the impact of the mid-20th century and later agricultural buildings on the character of the historic farm group.

Plate 12.21: View looking north west from the south-west corner of Lower Cosmeston Farm and illustrating the relationship between the historic farm buildings on the right-hand side and the mid-20th century and later agricultural structures that have been added on the left hand side.

Plate 12.22: View looking north from the eastern side of the Lower Cosmeston Farm complex and showing the proximity of the southern edge of modern Penarth across the fields within the site area.