Agriculture Buildings

Shipping Container to store vegetable seeds and produce that will be harvested from the land, for example 7,000 potato plants will yield between 4 and 5KG of potatoes, the potential harvest will therefore be 35,000KG of potatoes. Some of the crops will be incrementally sold, however the bulk will need to be harvested and stored to prevent the potatoes from rotting. There will also be over 20,000 onions and thousands of KG of Carrots and Peas. High-cost Farm equipment will also be stored in the Shipping Container for security.

Storage Unit will essentially be a large wooden double garage which will store excess produce and Farm Machinery and equipment. The Farm Machinery will include a compact tractor, plough, cultivator, potato, and seed planter, see examples over the next pages. Having the machinery will reduce reliance on Farm contractors whilst improving cultivation and harvesting effectiveness reducing manual work.

Workshop the workshop will enable equipment and machinery to be maintained on site, it will also be used to plant and cultivate seeds before moving to the Poly Tunnels for on-going growth through to harvesting.

The concept is for the buildings to have guttering to harvest rainwater into containers for irrigation and solar panels to reduce the need for external electricity power supply and help pump rainwater irrigation around the field.

Poly Tunnels 2 Poly Tunnels to provide longer growing season and greater variety of crops the Poly tunnels will utilise innovative sensors to monitor conditions and ensure plant ventilation and water efficiency.
